

RESEARCH ON THE PATH OF BUILDING A COMMUNITY OF SHARED FUTURE BETWEEN CHINA AND LATIN AMERICA AND ENHANCING THE DISCOURSE POWER OF THE GLOBAL SOUTH

Abstract : Amidst the unprecedented changes unseen in a century, the Global South, as a force for change in the international system, is promoting the transformation of the international order towards a fair and reasonable direction through collective action and measures. This article utilizes the construction of a community of shared future between China and Latin America as the starting point and explores how the Global South countries can enhance their international voice by deepening South-South cooperation. The study points out that China's modernization has broken the path dependence of "modernization = Westernization" and provided an important example for the Global South countries to explore independent development paths. Guided by the Belt and Road Initiative, cultural exchanges and multilateral governance coordination, China-Latin America cooperation has formed an comprehensive cooperation pattern in the fields of economy, trade, science and technology, culture, etc., significantly enhancing the momentum of regional development. In order to further enhance the international influence of the Global South, this article proposes strengthening think tank dialogue to build an independent discourse system, deepening media cooperation to shape a common narrative, and consolidating the public opinion basis for cooperation through cultural exchanges. The research shows that the practice of the China-Latin America community of shared future not only provides a regional sample for the modernization of the Global South, but also adds up new impetus into the building of a community with a shared future for mankind by enhancing the dominant role of developing countries in global governance.

1. THE EMERGENCE AND RESPONSIBILITY OF THE GLOBAL SOUTH IN A CENTURY OF RANGES OF CHANGES.

At present, the world is undergoing a major change unseen in a century, and the global power structure is undergoing a profound adjustment. The countries of the Global South are increasingly demonstrating their collectivism, independence and constructiveness in international affairs, and their voice in the global governance system is constantly amplifying. As an important force that cannot be ignored in the international system, the countries of the Global South have a common historical mission of opposing colonial hegemony, pursuing national independence and development and revitalization, and have demonstrated a strong will to work together on issues such as global governance, economic cooperation, and climate change (Wang, He & Yu, 2024).

As an important part of the Global South, Latin America has not only played a constructive role in promoting global governance reform, but also formed a model practice in cooperation with China. In recent years, China and Latin American countries have carried out all-round cooperation in the fields of economy, trade, culture, infrastructure construction, etc., which not only provided development momentum for Latin America, but also deepened the strategic connotation of the China-Latin America community of shared future. Starting from the historical positioning and identity construction of the Global South, this article deeply explores its leading role in building a community of shared future for mankind, and analyzes the important demonstration and cooperation path provided by "Chinese path to modernization" to lead the modernization of the Global South, especially Latin America, based on which, it further proves that deepening cooperation is a necessary way to lead the modernization of the Global South.

2. THE HISTORICAL POSITIONING OF THE GLOBAL SOUTH AND THE STRATEGIC VALUE OF BUILDING A COMMUNITY WITH A SHARED FUTURE

Theoretical innovation and practical orientation of the concept of a community with a shared future for mankind

The concept of a community with a shared future for mankind is the core content of Xi Jinping's diplomatic thought. It breaks through the zero-sum game thinking in traditional international relations theory and constructs a theoretical system with the concept of common interests, sustainable development and a new concept of global governance as the core. This concept is rooted in the philosophical wisdom of "harmony and coexistence" of Chinese civilization. It emphasizes the realization of common development of all countries through equal consultation on the basis of respecting the diversity of civilizations, and provides a "Chinese solution" to solve the dilemma of global governance. Building a community with a shared future for mankind is a strategic strategy proposed by President Xi Jinping for the future development of mankind, and responds to the contemporary proposition of how the world can achieve "common development". This concept includes the concept of interdependent international power, the concept of common interests of mutual benefit and win-win target, the concept of sustainable development oriented to the future, and the concept of inclusive and co-governing global governance. It is the inheritance and development of the Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence, and demonstrates the grand vision and mind of "all under heaven as one".

The concept of a community with a shared future for mankind emphasizes taking into account the legitimate concerns of other countries while pursuing one's own interests, promoting common progress among countries while pursuing one's own development. This concept is highly consistent with the "Global South"'s demands for peace, respect and equality. The Global South is not merely an important force in promoting the construction of a community with a shared future for mankind, but also an indispensable core component of building this community (Fan & Tao, 2020; Yu, Qu & Cui, 2022).

The concept of a community with a shared future for mankind has provided a new approach to solving the dilemma of global governance and has also breathing vitality into the Global South countries' joint efforts to gain greater voice and development space on the international stage. To further understand the importance of the Global South in building a community with a shared future for mankind, it has been essential to conduct an in-depth analysis of the Global South's identity construction and development consensus .

Identity construction and development consensus in the Global South

As an emerging group of countries, the identity of the Global South stems from their common historical experiences and commonly similar development demands. From the united self-strengthening endeavor during the anti-colonial struggle to the pursuit of revitalization in the post-Cold War era, the countries of the Global South have always played an important role in promoting change in the international system. Today, this group has shown a highly coordinated position on global issues such as climate change and digital governance, demonstrating its collective will to promote the transformation of the international order towards multipolarity and fairness (Zhao, Yuan & Wang et al, 2024) .

The Global South is far beyond a geographical concept or economic category, but also an identity based on common historical memory, current development stage, common development goals and similar political demands (Luo, 2025). Historically, the countries of the Global South have fought with joint hands for national independence and liberation against colonial hegemony, which has been gradually cohering into an international force that cannot be ignored. In recent years, with the profound adjustment of the international political and economic landscape, the Global South has continued to grow and develop, playing an increasingly important and constructive role in promoting changes in the international order and promoting the democratization of global governance.

The Global South has been becoming a backbone force in maintaining international fairness and justice and promoting an equal and organized international order. The historic expansion of the BRICS cooperation mechanism, the continued development of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization, and the "strong voice of the Global South" released by the Havana Summit of the Group of 77 and China have generated new impetus into the process of world multi-polarization and promoted the development of the international balance of power in a more balanced direction (People's Daily, 2025, March 8). As the countries of the Global South continue to grow in the evolution of the international order, their dominant role has become increasingly prominent. Especially in the construction of a community with a shared future for mankind, the countries of the Global South are becoming important driving forces in maintaining international fairness and justice by enhancing their own voice and action.

The leading role of the Global South in constructing a community with a shared future

In a critical period of profound coordination in the international power structure, the Global South has continuously enhanced the voice of developing countries in the formulation of international rules through the expansion of the BRICS mechanism and the strengthening of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization. In response to global challenges including the Ukrainian crisis, the Global South has adhered to an independent and peaceful foreign policy, formed value propositions that are different from those of the Western camp, becoming a key force in maintaining international fairness and justice.

With the rapid growth of some emerging market countries in the "Global South", these countries have occupied an increasingly important position in the international balance of power and have become the backbone of promoting the reform of the international governance system. In particular, the Global South has shown a firm stance in opposing unilateralism, protectionism and power politics. In the face of global challenges, the countries of the Global South insist on placing peace and development at the core of the international agenda, which is highly consistent with the "Global Development Initiative" and "Global Security Initiative" proposed by China under the framework of a community with a shared future for mankind (Liu & Tang, 2025). In international conflicts such as the Ukrainian crisis, the countries of the Global South refused to take sides and actively advocated peace and promoted conversation, becoming an important force in promoting political solutions to conflicts. These positions not only reflect the maintenance of international fairness and justice, but also constitute an important part of the construction of a community with a shared future for mankind.

The members of the Global South have diverse values and philosophies, and insist on equality of all countries, big or small, which provides a new perspective for handling international affairs. The Global South has become a positive force in promoting the democratization of international relations and fair and reasonable global governance, and plays an irreplaceable prominent role in building a community with a shared future for mankind. The leading role of the countries of the Global South in building a community with a shared future paves an important realistic foundation for deepening South-South cooperation. To be specific, China's modernization has contributed an important demonstration for the modernization of the Global South, and involved new impetus into achieving common development (Wang, 2025).

Deepening Cooperation is a Necessary Way to Lead the Modernization of the Global South: the common mission of the Global South and the value orientation of Chinese-style modernization.

Development, revitalization and modernization are the historical missions shared by the countries of the "Global South". China's modernization aims to build a community with a shared future for mankind that puts emphasis on mutual benefit and win-win cooperation with all countries in the world, and provides an important example for the southern countries that are eager for development yet still insisting on independence. The successful practice of China's modernization has broken the mindset of "modernization = Westernization" and promoted the development of the international order in the direction of fairness and justice through the global governance concept of consultation, joint construction and sharing (Gao, 2023). As Mr. Fei Xiaotong said: "Each country has its own advantages, appreciates the bright sides of others, and shares beauty together, and the world is united." This concept is highly consistent with the pursuit of independence and common prosperity by the countries of the Global South (Hong & Gu, 2021).

If independence is the political background shared by the "Global South", then development, revitalization and modernization are the historical missions they all shoulder. On the path to modernization, the countries of the Global South are committed to exploring development models that suit their national conditions and promoting the realization of a world of lasting peace, universal security, common prosperity, openness, inclusiveness, cleanliness and beauty. This goal is highly consistent with the vision of building a community with a shared future for mankind. The global governance concept of consultation, joint construction and sharing provides a path for its realization. The Global Development Initiative, Global Security Initiative and Global Civilization Initiative empower the strategic guidance for the development of the countries of the South. The high-quality joint construction of the "Belt and Road" is its practical platform, which further promotes the overall development of the Global South (Xu, 2024).

The goal of China's modernization is not only to achieve its own development, but also to contribute to human peace and development and promote common prosperity of all countries. China has always adhered to mutual benefit and win-win cooperation with all countries in the world, taken strides to provide Chinese wisdom and solutions for human peace and development (Xi, 2022, October 26). This development path provides a useful reference for the Global South countries to explore an independent path of modernization. As a natural member of the Global South, the successful practice of China's modernization has broken the myth that "modernization = Westernization" and provided important inspiration for the Global South countries that are eager for development but unwilling to lose their independence (Liu & Zhang, 2023). Under the demonstration and guidance of China's modernization, the Global South countries have gradually realized the importance of achieving common development through deepening cooperation. The cooperation path between China and the Global South countries, especially the successful practice in Latin America, is providing valuable experience for the Global South countries to explore modernization.

Practical Paths for Cooperation between China and the Global South

As a natural member of the Global South, China has always supported other developing countries in pursuing paths of independent development with practical movements. Through multiple cooperation platforms such as the Belt and Road Initiative, the South-South Cooperation Assistance Fund, and the Global Development Initiative, China has provided economic development channels and governance experience references for countries in the Global South, assisting to solve development difficulties (Wang & Zou, 2025).

The "Belt and Road" initiative has not only promoted infrastructure connectivity among countries along the route, but also driven the common development of the Global South through a cooperation mechanism of equality, mutual trust, mutual benefit and win-win results. In Latin America, China has carried out in-depth cooperation with Brazil, Argentina, Peru and other countries in areas such as infrastructure construction, energy cooperation, and digital economy, which has significantly enhanced the local economic growth potential and independent development capabilities (Han, Liao & Liu, 2025). China's cooperation with Chile has promoted the development and utilization of copper resources, and the "Two Oceans Railway" project jointly built with Peru has greatly improved regional logistics conditions. These pragmatic collaborations not only help Latin American countries achieve economic growth, but also provide a development model that can be used as a reference for countries in the Global South.

Through the South-South Cooperation Assistance Fund, China provides technical assistance and talents training to Global South countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and other regions to help them enhance their independent development capabilities (Dai, Zhou & Fu, 2024). The Global Development Initiative has further deepened China's cooperation with the Global South in areas such as poverty eradication, food security, green development, and the digital economy, demonstrating China's determination to jointly confront global development challenges with the southern countries. These cooperation paths not only reflect China's sincerity in sharing development opportunities with the Global South, but also provide an innovative paradigm for building a new type of international relations (Lan & Wu, 2024). China's cooperation with Latin America has become a model of Global South cooperation, which has not only promoted regional economic development, but also provided valuable experience for the modernization of the Global South. To further lead the modernization of the Global South, deepening cooperation is the only way to achieve this goal.

Deepening cooperation is the only way for the modernization of the Global South

Faced with the unprecedented changes in the world, the Global South countries need to work together to cope with complex and changing challenges in the process of modernization. Deepening South-South cooperation not only involves the economic field, but also needs to be expanded to cooperation in multiple fields such as politics, security, and culture to form an all-round and in-depth cooperation pattern. The BRICS mechanism, the Belt and Road Initiative and other platforms have become an important force in promoting the reform of the global governance system by gathering the spirit of solidarity and mutual assistance (Wang & Zou, 2025).

Under the framework of the BRICS mechanism, Brazil, India, South Africa and other countries in the Global South have continuously strengthened their cooperation, promoted the reforms of the international financial system, and enhanced the voice of developing countries in international affairs (Men, 2024). The Belt and Road Initiative provides a practical platform for developing countries to integrate into the global economy and promote inter-connection. Through multi-dimensional cooperation such as infrastructure construction, unimpeded trade, financial integration, and people-to-people exchanges, it has developed into lasting impetus into the modernization process of various countries.

As an important part of the Global South, Latin America is also playing an active role in deepening South-South cooperation. The cooperation between China and Latin American countries in the fields of agricultural technology transfer, green energy development, infrastructure construction, etc. has effectively promoted the regional economic and social development. The agricultural cooperation between Argentina and China has significantly improved the level of food security, and Ecuador's green energy projects have helped the country optimize its energy structure. These cooperation cases fully demonstrate the practical value of deepening South-South cooperation.

In the future, with the expansion of cooperation areas and the upgrading of mechanisms, the countries of the Global South will jointly write a new chapter of modernization with a closer partnership and make greater contributions to promoting global governance in a more justified and reasonable direction. Deepening cooperation in the Global South is not only a necessary path to lead modernization, but also the key to achieving common development and responding to global challenges. In the process of deepening cooperation in the Global South, China-Latin America cooperation has provided regional practice for building a community with a shared future for mankind, and has also laid a solid foundation for promoting the reform of the international governance system and enhancing the voice of the Global South.

3. CHINA-LATIN AMERICA COMMUNITY OF SHARED FUTURE: REGIONAL PRACTICE IN BUILDING A COMMUNITY OF SHARED FUTURE FOR MANKIND.

Deepen economic and trade cooperation and jointly build the BRI to boost regional economic prosperity.

In recent years, China's economic and trade cooperation with Latin America and the Caribbean (LAC) has been deepening, and the Belt and Road Initiative has offered new impetus into regional economic growth. As of 2024, 21 Latin American countries have signed cooperation agreements on the joint construction of the Belt and Road, and cooperation projects cover infrastructure, energy, communications, digital economy and other fields (Xu, 2025). China's bilateral trade volume with Brazil, Argentina, Chile and other countries has continued to surge. In terms of 2023, China's trade volume with Latin America reached US$450 billion, breaking through the previous records.

Brazil is China's largest trading partner in Latin America. China and Brazil have achieved remarkable results in cooperation in agricultural products, mineral resources and energy. For example, the Belo Monte Hydropower Station project invested by Chinese enterprises in Brazil, as a key project under the framework of the "Belt and Road Initiative", not only meets Brazil's energy commands, but also promotes local employment and drives economic development in the surrounding areas. Similarly, the Bilateral Currency Swap Agreement signed between China and Argentina has further consolidated the cooperation between the two countries in the financial field and provided important support for Argentina's economic stability.

The Belt and Road cooperation not only provides opportunities for the economic development of China and Latin America, but also promotes regional economic integration through the construction of interconnected infrastructure. The Chancay Port project in Peru, the canal expansion project in Panama, and the green energy cooperation project in Chile have fully demonstrated the far-reaching potential of the Belt and Road Initiative in promoting mutual benefit and win-win results between China and Latin America.

Economic and trade cooperation has laid a solid foundation for China-Latin America relations, while cultural exchanges and people-to-people bonds have further consolidated the social recognition of the China-Latin America community with a shared future and injected cultural and social impetus into promoting cooperation in the Global South.

Cultural exchanges and people-to-people bonds consolidate the social foundation for the China-Latin America community with a shared future

In addition to economic and trade cooperation, China and Latin America have continuously strengthened cooperation in people-to-people exchanges, educational cooperation and cultural interaction, laying a solid social foundation for building a community with a shared future between China and Latin America. In recent years, China has established a number of Confucius Institutes in Latin America. As of 2023, there are 39 Confucius Institutes and 18 Confucius Classrooms in Latin America, widely distributed in Brazil, Mexico, Colombia and other countries, becoming an important platform for promoting cultural exchanges and language learning.

In addition, cooperation between Chinese and Latin American universities continues to deepen. Many universities, including the University of Sao Paulo in Brazil, the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), and the University of Buenos Aires in Argentina, have established cooperative relations with Chinese universities, covering academic research, joint training, exchange student programs and other fields. For example, the "China-Mexico Future Talent Training Program" jointly launched by China and Mexico in 2022 has trained a large number of young talents for the two countries who understand each other's culture and have cross-cultural communication capabilities.

Cultural exchanges not only enhance mutual understanding between the peoples of China and Latin America, but also provide continuous power and assistance for consolidating the China-Latin America community with a shared future (Cui, 2019).<sup>18</sup> In 2023, under the framework of the China-Latin America and the Caribbean Community (CELAC) Forum, the China-Latin America Media Cooperation Forum was successfully held, which deepened the exchanges and cooperation between media and think tanks, and provided public opinion support and discourse power for promoting the diversified development of China-Latin America cooperation. Cultural exchanges between China and Latin America have consolidated the social foundation of the community with a shared future, and at the global governance level, the high degree of coordination between China and Latin America in multilateral cooperation has also provided strong support for promoting changes in the global governance system.

Global governance and multilateral cooperation to jointly address global challenges

China-Latin America cooperation has gone beyond the bilateral scope and has increasingly become an important force in promoting global governance reform and responding to global challenges. On multilateral platforms such as the United Nations, the World Trade Organization (WTO), and the Group of Twenty (G20), China and Latin America have maintained a high degree of coordination on issues such as addressing climate change, promoting sustainable development, and promoting global health cooperation (Wang & Wu, 2024). Under the framework of the Paris Agreement, many countries in China and Latin America have unanimously advocated adhering to the principle of "common but differentiated responsibilities", promoting developed countries to assume historical responsibilities, and providing more financial and technical support to developing countries (Zhang & Wang, 2025).

In the process of responding to the COVID-19 pandemic, China has effectively promoted public health security in Latin America by providing vaccines, medical supplies and technical support to Latin American countries. For example, China has provided hundreds of millions of doses of vaccines to Chile, Brazil, Argentina and other countries, thus effectively supporting local vaccination efforts. In addition, the Global Development Initiative (GDI) jointly launched by China and Latin American countries promotes developing countries to strengthen coordination under the framework of the United Nations and jointly promote the implementation of the global development agenda (Rao, 2020). These collaborations demonstrate the positive contribution of the China-Latin America community with a shared future in promoting changes in the global governance system and enhancing the voice of developing countries.

By deepening multilateral cooperation, China and Latin America jointly promote the construction of a new paradigm of South-South cooperation, provide regional practice and strategic support for the realization of a community with a shared future for mankind, and fully demonstrate the subjectivity and constructive role of the Global South in global governance reform. The in-depth advancement of global governance reform requires a stronger international voice as support, and the Global South countries urgently need to enhance their international voice through media cooperation and think tank dialogue.

4. STRENGTHEN MEDIA COOPERATION AND DIALOGUE AMONG THINK-TANKS TO ENHANCE THE INTERNATIONAL VOICE OF THE GLOBAL SOUTH.

Establish a Global Southern think tank forum and build an independent and original discourse system

Think tanks play a key role in international communication and discourse system construction. At present, although China's think tank cooperation with the Global South has achieved initial results, there is still a long way to go for improvement in enhancing the international discourse power of the Global South. Catering to the needs, it is recommended to establish a "Global South Modernization Forum" or a "Global South Shared Future Think Tank Forum" to create a cross-regional and normalized think tank cooperation platform. This platform can promote experience sharing and exchange of views among think tanks in the Global South through regular academic dialogues, policy interpretations, and joint publication of research results, and gradually form an independent and original discourse system that meets the development demands of the Global South.

The China-Brazil High-Level Think Tank Dialogue Mechanism and the cooperative research model between the South African Humanities Research Institute (HSRC) and the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences have provided useful experience for deepening cooperation among think tanks in the Global South. In addition, the platform is also committed to bringing together intellectual resources from countries in the Global South to form a collaborative consensus on issues such as global governance, development aid, and the digital economy, and continuously enhance the influence of countries in the Global South in setting the international agenda. Think tank cooperation provides theoretical support, while media cooperation is an important means to shape a common narrative of development in the Global South and to enhance international discourse power.

Strengthening media cooperation in the Global South and shaping a common narrative of cooperative development.

Media plays an important role in shaping a country's image and guiding international public opinion. At present, the voice of the media in the Global South is still relatively at lower volume in international communication, and there lies an urgent need to build a media cooperation mechanism among the Global South countries to jointly shape a common narrative of South-South cooperation. It is recommended to establish a "Global South International Communication Linkage Mechanism" to integrate the mainstream media resources of southern countries, which engages in actively telling the story of win-win cooperation in the Global South through events of joint reporting, simultaneous voice, and cooperative launch of special programs, and enhance the voice of the Global South in the international public opinion field.

The "Chinese Latin America" media cooperation platform jointly launched by China and Latin American countries, and the joint production project between the South African Broadcasting Corporation (SABC) and China Central Radio and Television (CMG) have provided referential paths for building a connecting mechanism for media cooperation among southern countries. In addition, by leveraging new media platforms, the Global Southern countries can also create diversified communication channels in the international community that keep actively responding to international concerns in order to let the world obtain a more comprehensive understanding of the positive changes brought about by South-South cooperation. On the basis of cooperation between media and think tanks, deepening cultural exchanges and mutual learning between civilizations will lay a solid public opinion foundation for the continued deepening of Global Southern cooperation.

Deepen cultural exchanges and mutual learning among civilizations , and consolidate the public opinion foundation for cooperation in the Global South

People-to-people exchanges have greatly bridged to promote mutual understanding among the peoples of the Global South, providing a solid social foundation for South-South cooperation. Under the guidance of the Belt and Road Initiative, China and southern countries have achieved fruitful results in people-to-people exchanges, including the establishment of cultural centers, and the launch of brand activities such as "Cultural Year" and "Happy Spring Festival", which have significantly deepened the cultural integration between the countries. In the future, we should further expand the breadth and depth of people-to-people exchanges, promote cooperation among the Global South in the fields of culture, education, art, etc., and enhance understanding and friendship among peoples of all countries through diversified exchange projects such as youth exchanges, art exhibitions, film and television cooperation, publishing and translation.

The "China-Argentina Cultural Exchange Center" jointly established by China and Argentina has successfully held many art exhibitions and literary exchange activities, providing a window for the people of the two countries to understand each other's culture. At the same time, countries in the Global South should strengthen the institutionalization of cultural exchanges, such as establishing a "Global South Cultural Exchange Alliance" to promote normalized interactions among countries in the cultural field, and continue to cultivate cultural mutual trust and spiritual nourishment into the construction of a community with a shared future for the Global South. People-to-people exchanges are an important bridge to promote mutual understanding among the peoples of the Global South and provide a solid social foundation for South-South cooperation. Under the guidance of the Belt and Road Initiative, China and southern countries have achieved fruitful results in people-to-people exchanges, including the establishment of cultural centers, and the launch of brand activities such as "Cultural Year" and "Happy Spring Festival", which have significantly deepened the cultural integration between the countries.

Coordinating China-Latin America Cooperation: Empowering the Rise of the Global South and Global Governance

As an irresistible force that makes change in the international system, the Global South not only shoulders the important responsibility of promoting the transformation of the international order towards a more equitable and reasonable direction, but also plays an indispensable role in the process of building a community with a shared future for mankind. As an important part of the Global South, Latin America has provided an important regional demonstration for the modernization of the Global South through in-depth cooperation with China. The joint construction of cooperation platforms such as the Belt and Road Initiative and the BRICS mechanism has not only promoted the comprehensive development of China-Latin America relations, but also provided a practical path for the Global South to achieve common prosperity. In the future, deepening China-Latin America cooperation will further consolidate the constructive role of the Global South in the global governance system, jointly usher a new situation in global governance, and contribute more profoundly to the peace and development of mankind.
